

The present invention provides materials and methods for screening for and treating hereditary lymphedema in human subjects.

The present invention provides materials and methods for screening for and treating hereditary lymphedema in human subjects.